"Quiet Work": The Poetry of Flowers and Gardens
Tuesday 20th July 2020: 10am-4pm

One of English poetry's most well-known poems – Wordsworth's 'Daffodils' – uses flowers as a means to facilitate the poet's thought, and many other poets have done likewise. Poets are also skilled at paying attention to the essence of plants and flowers and finding vivid images to evoke them. We will use Holland House's glorious gardens to inspire and focus our own poems, Refreshments and two course lunch included.
